Administrative Areas

Expect more from your administrative environments

Improve your staff's productivity, comfort, and satisfaction. Important work happens everywhere in a healthcare facility. Many of the issues you wrestle with on the clinical side, such as providing the most supportive and productive workplace possible so your staff can tend to their important work, happen on the administrative side, as well. The people who lead and manage the day-to-day business of your healthcare facility need work environments that give them the tools to increase their productivity, comfort, and satisfaction.

Do your administrative workspaces support the many functions and work styles of your staff? Do they tell your staff they are important and valued? Do they support your ability to run an efficient and fiscally responsible business? Do your reception areas welcome, comfort, and assure patients and families? Do they communicate the quality of your healing organization?

Create a positive first impression

Extend the life of your purchase with flexible, modular furnishings.

First impressions are important, and even more so when circumstances involve one's health or the well-being of a loved one. Visitors who enter your healthcare facility may be nervous about an impending surgery or thrilled to visit the newest member of their family. The impression you create plays a role in assuring patients—and their families and friends—of your competent and caring hands.

With Herman Miller's Ethospace® reception station with custom fascia, style won't be compromised for functionality. Your organization's image can be expressed through elegant veneers, colorful patterns, or the display of its name or logo. The flexibility of modular furnishings extends the life of your purchase. You can reconfigure your lobby area without having to invest in new millwork. Technology upgrades can be made without disassembling the station. And modular products offer financial advantages over built-in furniture.

Address a variety of work needs

Wide-ranging choice of solutions.

An effective workplace addresses the varying preferences and requirements of individuals and departments. Herman Miller's breadth of offering gives you choice in cost, aesthetics, and functionality, so that you can provide the right solutions for your staff and organization.

HIPAA regulations require the human resources and patient financial services groups to keep work and conversations private. Risk Management and Compliance meet regularly with clinical department leads. In-service training activities require large meeting areas. Medical Records needs ample and secure storage. IT requires furnishings that facilitate continual technology upgrades. And everyone needs ergonomically designed seating.

Be flexible and adaptable

Applications that respond to change.

The flexibility of Herman Miller's systems and their applications facilitates confidential work or collaborative projects. The ease and flexibility of the lay-in cable design on all our systems products make technology integration seamless and installation the easiest in the industry. Our selection of executive office and conference room furniture meets the requirements of your leaders. Full-height walls and acoustical enhancements create privacy and support concentrated work.

Mobile and adaptable products support team work in shared spaces outside individual offices. Our selection of storage products addresses needs for individual offices and provides secure and durable storage for entire departments. Herman Miller's position as the office seating leader means you have an unparalleled choice of ergonomically designed chairs in a range of price points.

Increase long-term value

Products that are built to last and perform.

Herman Miller products are built to last and adapt as your workplace changes, increasing the return on your investment. The ability to update aesthetics and applications using a common set of products lowers the cost of your initial purchase over time. You will also find Herman Miller's name on all major group purchasing organization contracts, so you can maximize the buying advantages of those relationships. In addition, modular furnishings offer tax advantages and a strengthened ROI.

But value isn't only about longevity and cost. Recruiting the best talent—and keeping it—builds your organization's value. Work environments are one way you can set your facility apart from the next when attracting employees. The environment you create is a visible sign of your organization's culture and image.

Make the best choices

Selection of innovative products, services, and applications.
All the benefits of thoughtfully designed, modular furniture in your clinical areas hold true in your office spaces as well, from durability and functionality to adaptability and response to change—something you know a great deal about.

The workplace is something Herman Miller knows a great deal about. We've been providing innovative products, services, and applications for healthcare and corporate customers for decades. We have an interest in improving your business because it is an important part of ours.
