

State and local government and higher education

The Preferred Choice

From the county seat to the college campus, Herman Miller works for a better world around you. We do that by providing furnishings that improve the human experience wherever people work, learn and heal.

As one of the largest furniture suppliers to state and local government, we understand your procurement challenges and spending concerns.

And as a favorite within higher education, we bring innovative furniture solutions to learning, living, and working environments throughout the cutting-edge campus.

U.S. Communities: The simplest way for you to get the best deal

Want great price, local service and product selection without the hassle of seeking competitive bids?

You can get it through the U.S. Communities procurement cooperative available to all state and local government entities and educational institutions. U.S. Communities allows you to forego the bid process, yet still leverage the national buying power of state and local governments to secure significant discounts on Herman Miller products and services.

 Herman Miller

Why Herman Miller?

Product breadth.

Seating, systems, filing, storage, tables, desks, lounge furniture, healthcare products – between Herman Miller and our alliance partners, you’ll find everything you need.

Government experts.

With decades of government experience, Herman Miller understands the complex procurement regulations you’re up against in your local market. Specially trained dealers, government specialists on staff, government sales managers in the field - Herman Miller brings an unrivaled breadth of resources to government projects. We can give you insight into contract selection, bid-writing strategy, even the best practices of your peers.

Best possible value.

Add the best discounts available to the best quality around, couple that with great service and you wind up with an exceptional value. That’s what Herman Miller provides you, and it equates to responsible stewardship of taxpayer dollars.

Sustainable solutions.

Partner with a pioneer in environmentally responsible product design and one of the country’s top corporate citizens for sustainable business practices. Being green has been a cornerstone of our culture since the 1950s. It still is today. One proof of that is recognition from others, such as being chosen by the Dow Jones Sustainability Index for the past five years.

Supplier diversity.

Leading the office furniture industry, Herman Miller has made it a practice to include diverse-owned businesses as a part of its standard operating procedures. Supplier development, mentoring, and strategic partnerships are the cornerstones of the company’s success.

Product quality.

Look at most industry warranties and you’re mostly looking at fine print. Look at Herman Miller’s and you’ll see a 12-year promise that covers absolutely everything – even labor. It’s the best in the furniture business.
